

PENNSYLVANIA HISTORICAL & MUSEUM COMMISSION

The Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission (PHMC) is the official history agency of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It was created in 1945 when three previously separate organizations merged: the Pennsylvania State Archives, established in 1903; the State Museum of Pennsylvania, created in 1905; and the Pennsylvania Historical Commission (PHC), initiated by legislation in 1913.

The responsibilities of PHMC, which are based in the Pennsylvania Constitution, are further defined in the History Code and the Administrative Code. The primary duties include the following:

- the conservation of Pennsylvania's historic and natural heritage
- the preservation of public records, historic documents, and objects of historic interest
- the identification, restoration and preservation of architecturally and historically significant sites and structures.

Our Mission

The Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission works in partnership with others to preserve the commonwealth's natural and cultural heritage as a steward, teacher and advocate for the people of Pennsylvania and the nation.

Our Vision

The Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission enriches people's lives by helping them to understand Pennsylvania's past, to appreciate the present, and to embrace the future.

From the Chair

The Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission is the epicenter of a gigantic network connecting people and history. The network includes hundreds of historic sites and museums, thousands of municipal governments, neighborhood organizations, honorary societies, trade associations, preservation activists, and religious and ethnic communities across all of Pennsylvania. These are our partners, or stakeholders, and our advocates. As public servants, our staff and volunteers are dedicated to serving them.

We at the Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission believe the best connections work both ways. We not only educate, we learn. When someone shares a family recipe, a memory or an heirloom, Pennsylvania's story becomes richer and more authentic. When these memories and artifacts are captured and preserved, all Pennsylvanians benefit.

Our partners, as well as the thousands of you who use the Pennsylvania State Archives for genealogical research, visit our sites and museums, take part in archaeological excavations, and attend PHMC programs on topics ranging from historic tax credits to Pennsylvania's flora and fauna, inspire us. You remind us how important it is to embrace Pennsylvania's exuberant diversity in everything we do.

Nancy Moses Chair

From the Executive Director

The Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission is dedicated to preserving and promoting Pennsylvania history, making it accessible and relevant to all Pennsylvanians. We are public servants, and it is the responsibility of each of us here to continually find ways to serve you better.

Over the last year, we have recommitted ourselves to ensuring that the voices of all Pennsylvanians are heard within the history we keep, adopting the agency's first official diversity, equity, inclusion and access policy. This has resulted in more varied programs and campaigns that serve a diverse population.

We are working to develop programs that cater to populations who may have experienced barriers to participating in the past. We have introduced American Sign Language interpreters at some of our programs. We have established reduced fees for low-income families. We are mining our collections, ensuring they are properly cataloged so that all Pennsylvanians can find their history. We are featuring stories that have been overlooked in the past.

We are also focused on making history accessible to Pennsylvanians, wherever they are. We are always adding to our digital collections. At the moment, we have digitized 17.5 million records in the Pennsylvania State Archives and made them available online, serving 5.5 million Pennsylvanians virtually in the last year. In addition, we are currently developing a searchable database for all our museum collections and aim to make that publicly available in 2020. The Pennsylvania State Historic Preservation Office (PA SHPO) is digitizing their files, including National Register nominations, survey information and site reports, with the intent of making that information available online as well. We have converted all our grant applications from paper to electronic format, streamlining the process for grantees and reducing turnaround times. PA SHPO's electronic platform, PA-SHARE, will be structured to allow for electronic submittals for National Register nominations, environmental review, and marker nominations.

Of course, much of our work has been in the physical world with exhibit openings like Landis Valley Village & Farm Museum's Thrown, Fired, and Glazed: The Redware Tradition from Pennsylvania and Beyond and the Governors' Panel that was convened at Pennsbury Manor, bringing together Pennsylvania governors Tom Ridge, Mark Schweiker, Ed Rendell, Tom Corbett and Tom Wolf to discuss the challenges and opportunities associated with governing our complex and diverse state, with all proceeds going towards the creation of a scholarship fund for students at Title I schools.

We have big plans for the coming year and look forward to having you join us as we break ground for a new Pennsylvania State Archives building, begin some long-anticipated construction projects at our historic sites, and open new exhibits at The State Museum of Pennsylvania.

Andrea Lowery Executive Director

The Pennsylvania State Archives protects more than 250 million significant historic, legal and financial documents for use by state agencies and the public. These documents range from William Penn's Charter of 1681 to the digital media of recent governors and vital records such as historic birth and death certificates. The archives makes these documents available to the public—researchers, genealogists, scholars—both in person and online. The State Archives also operates the State Records Center, a cost-effective storage facility for the records of state agencies, and it trains state and local governments to safeguard and manage records. In the past year, the archives served more than 5.5 million visitors in person and online.

Lost 18th-Century General Assembly Minutes Returned to Archives

The Pennsylvania State Archives is the repository for Pennsylvania government records that date back as early as the commonwealth's founding in 1681. Before the archives was created, some documents were lost through physical damage, misappropriation, or inadequate safeguarding. In July 2018 the archives was notified by Belden Noble Memorial Library in Essex, New York, that a volume of the minutes of Pennsylvania's unicameral Revolutionary War-era General Assembly had been placed at the library with other historic books for review. The book had been discovered by Edie Morris in an Essex-area family homestead she inherited. With entries dated from March 16 through September 27, 1779, and pages numbered 1 through 183, this volume immediately preceded the oldest assembly minute book held by the archives that begins on page 184, dated September 28, 1779. Learning about its authenticity, Morris presented the book to the archives on August 3. The archives now preserves the volume in its high-security vault with other early minute books of Pennsylvania's legislature and makes the volume available for review by patrons upon advance request.

Archives Works with Statewide Emergency Network to Restore Damaged Historic Documents

In recent years, the Pennsylvania State Archives has participated in the Pennsylvania Cultural Resilience Network, an initiative to improve disaster preparedness through an emergency response network at historical and cultural repositories across the commonwealth. In this capacity, the archives serves as a resource in emergencies and disasters that affect archival materials, especially those of government agencies. A prime example of the response network in action occurred this year when a Lancaster County municipality discovered water-damaged historic records in a building's basement. The borough notified a regional network contact at LancasterHistory, who supplied hands-on assistance, secured freezer space for the materials, and alerted the State Archives. Archives staff provided additional guidance on freezing, mold remediation, long-term recovery, and resources available through other state agencies. Working with this network, the archives fulfills a mission to assist communities and cultural heritage institutions with hands-on training and connections to professional contacts to preserve valuable historic resources.

Archives Assists Diverse Communities in PA

The Pennsylvania State Archives provides many state. county and municipal governments, as well as nonprofit historical institutions, with guidance, training and assistance in preserving their historic records. Through presentations, meetings and consultations, the archives has endeavored to expand this effort to include a variety of community groups throughout Pennsylvania, so that they are better equipped to collect, preserve and share the documents that tell their own unique stories. In addition to working with place-based communities this year, the archives has been involved with the Chautaugua Live and Learn Series, focusing on African American history, as well as immigrant communities through organizations such as the South Asian American Digital Archives and the Bhutan Research & Information Network, to document and share their experiences.

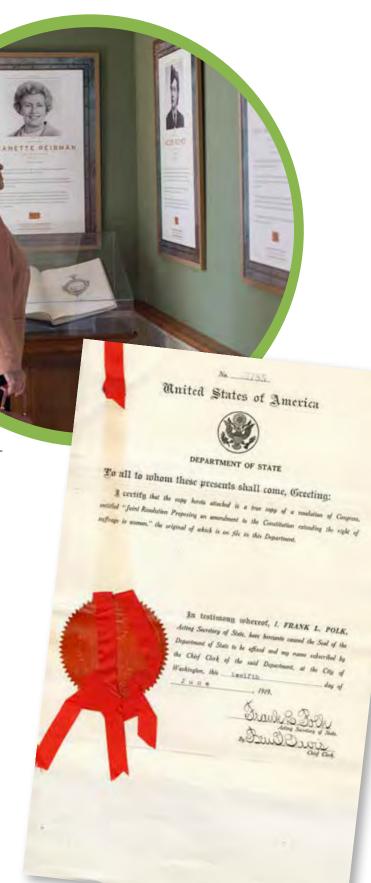

Accessibility of Archives Collections Increases

The Pennsylvania State Archives' effort to digitize its collections and make them freely accessible online at powerlibrary.org continued throughout 2018-19. Scanning of documents previously available only on microfilm reached a total of more than 7,535 rolls this year, with 1,487 now online. Collections online that were supplemented this year include Revolutionary War pensions, state land records, birth and death certificates, state hospital records, and Eastern State Penitentiary documents. Many postcards, photographs and films from the archives' collections are now online and have received greater visibility through PHMC social media channels. Top posts this year included historic images of the Pennsylvania Canal and the home front in World War I and film footage of the Pennsylvania Turnpike and Tropical Storm Agnes, making the public aware of the archives as an important source of imagery on Pennsylvania history for authors and scholars working on projects, publications and documentaries as well as for the historical enrichment of the public. By the end of the fiscal year, a total of more than 17.5 million documents, including records on Ancestry.com, were accessible online.

PHMC Commemorates Centennial of PA's Ratification of Women's Suffrage Amendment

On June 24, 1919, Pennsylvania became the seventh state to ratify the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, guaranteeing women the right to vote. The Pennsylvania General Assembly's joint resolution documents for both the proposal and the ratification of the amendment are preserved in the Pennsylvania State Archives. To mark the centennial of Pennsylvania's ratification of the amendment, these documents were displayed alongside William Penn's Charter of 1681 at The State Museum of Pennsylvania on March 10, 2019, for the annual Charter Day commemoration of the anniversary of the commonwealth's founding. Nearly 1,000 visitors waited in line to view the documents. Also in commemoration of this important moment in history. PHMC teamed with the Office of the First Lady, the Pennsylvania Commission for Women, the Distinguished Daughters of Pennsylvania, and the Pennsylvania Governor's Residence to present Game Changers, an exhibition produced by The State Museum showcasing 32 Pennsylvania women who overcame obstacles and made significant strides in their fields over the last 100 years. The exhibit opened at the Pennsylvania Governor's Residence on March 19, 2019, with a reception hosted by Governor Tom Wolf and First Lady Frances Wolf.

The State Museum of Pennsylvania

is responsible for maintaining a collection of more than 9 million artifacts that tell the stories of Pennsylvania's natural and cultural history. These are the largest collections in the commonwealth focused exclusively on the heritage of Pennsylvania, covering the fields of art, history, archaeology, geology, paleontology and natural history. Listed in the National Register of Historic Places, The State Museum building boasts nearly 160,000 square feet of exhibit space filled with both permanent and changing exhibits. Approximately 40,000 school students visit the museum each year. Another 60,000 adult and group visitors participate in the museum's educational and facility use programs.

Art of the State Highlights Artistic Expression in PA

One hundred and three works of art by 99 artists from 27 counties in Pennsylvania were featured at the 51st Art of the State, the annual iuried exhibition at The State Museum. Since 1968 the museum has served as the venue for Pennsylvania artists to share their ideas and engage viewers through a diverse body of artwork, sustaining what has become a cultural tradition in the state. At the opening ceremony in June 2018, artists received awards for painting, photography, craft, sculpture and work on paper. Each year the museum chooses a Purchase Award from the exhibit for its collection: this year's selection was 5535-2017(5535 Opioid/Heroin Deaths in Pennsylvania in 2017), which also won first prize in sculpture. The work, by visual artist Maria Maneos, hangs from ceiling-tofloor with 5,535 crystal beads representing individuals who lost their battle with opioid/heroin addiction in Pennsylvania in 2017, an urgent comment on a critical issue facing the commonwealth. In August, the museum's special exhibition of Art of the State Purchase Award winners of the past half-century traveled to the Pennsylvania Governor's Residence, where it was on display until February 2019.

State Museum's Service to the Arts Recognized

In addition to presenting the annual Art of the State juried exhibition. The State Museum is noted for its commitment to the arts in the commonwealth. The museum's own Fine Arts Collection contains more than 7,500 works by Pennsylvania artists, including Edward Hicks, N.C. Wyeth, Violet Oakley, Charles Demuth, Horace Pippin, Janet de Coux and Andy Warhol. This year, the museum mounted the timely exhibition Innovative Means, featuring photographs from its collection that emphasize experimental techniques made viable as camera and film technologies have evolved over the last 80 years. The museum was recognized this year in its own resident arts community by Theatre Harrisburg with the Award for Distinguished Service to the Arts in the Capitol Region. The award was presented at a gala ceremony and reception that included a stage tribute with song and dance depicting the life of the museum.

Mammal Hall Reopens After Three-Year Restoration Project

For the past 50 years, Mammal Hall has been one of The State Museum's most popular and acclaimed exhibits, featuring 13 worldclass dioramas of wild animals in their Pennsylvania habitats. The hall has served as an important educational tool for thousands of students who visit the museum each year, as well as a captivating attraction for families and other visitors. The three-vear process to restore Mammal Hall and provide a new interpretation for it was completed this year. On September 25, 2018, the museum and the Pennsylvania Heritage Foundation cohosted a special reception to rededicate and officially reopen the hall. An exhibit profiling the creation and restoration of Mammal Hall also debuted in the adjacent gallery.

Museum Promotes Student Education and Achievement with Vital Programs

As one of its ongoing initiatives, The State Museum hosts a number of annual competitions and events each year showcasing student achievement in Pennsylvania: the South Central Pennsylvania Scholastic Art Awards, the Future City Competition. the Pennsylvania Council of the Arts' Poetry Out Loud contest, and the Pennsylvania State Geography Bee. This year for the first time, the museum featured students' displays from each competition in a special Student Achievement Gallery. In addition to highlighting student achievement, The State Museum offers a variety of educational tours and programs for the more than 40,000 public and private school students who visit each year, as well as an annual Home School Day with shows, gallery talks, and hands-on activities for homeschooled students.

Pennsylvanians in World War I Honored at Bells of Peace Event

The Keystone State contributed significantly to the Allied effort in World War I, with more than 297,000 Pennsylvanians serving in the conflict. To honor this service and commemorate the centennial of the Armistice that ended the war. The State Museum held a Bells of Peace ceremony on Veterans Day, November 11, 2018, culminating with the ringing of its full-size replica Liberty Bell. This public event, hosted in conjunction with the United States World War I Centennial Commission, coincided with other Bells of Peace ceremonies across the country in which bells were tolled in their communities 21 times that day. Following the bell tolling, The State Museum opened the exhibit Dressed for Service: Pennsylvanians in the Great War, spotlighting the contributions and sacrifices of six Pennsylvanians who volunteered for service in the war and featuring the volunteers' uniforms, clothing and personal effects. Centennial events were also held by PHMC's other sites throughout the state. Erie Maritime Museum collaborated with local organizations to ring an original bell from the USS Wolverine at the nearby U.S. Coast Guard Station at Presque Isle in special honor of the 100 men from the ship's crew who were the first from Erie County to go into active service when the U.S. entered World War I.

The Bureau of Historic Sites and Museums

preserves and interprets 28 historic sites and museums across the commonwealth that together tell a broad story of Pennsylvania. These sites, which welcomed nearly 347,000 visitors in 2018–19, include battlefields, historic houses and religious settlements, as well as theme museums focused on Pennsylvania's nationally significant role in key industries including lumber, coal, agriculture and railroads. Although rooted in history, these museums interpret themes in relevant and contemporary ways, hosting citizenship ceremonies, interpreting the state's traditions of immigration and tolerance, and celebrating the state's social, cultural and economic diversity. The total economic impact of PHMC's sites and museums last year in their communities was more than $20.5 million.

Landis Valley Connects Visitors to Seeds of the Past

The Heirloom Seed Project at the Landis Valley Village & Farm Museum in Lancaster researches. tests and preserves the seeds of historically significant varieties of vegetables, herbs and ornamentals that have a history of being passed down by a family or community, from roughly 1750 to 1940. The site makes many of the seeds and plants available to the public through catalogs and at its annual Herb & Garden Faire, which began more than three decades ago as a sale of excess plants grown by the project. The fair, held each year in May, is now the site's most popular event, drawing more than 3,400 people this past year. All of the sites and museums on the Pennsylvania Trails of History organize special programs and hold annual signature events that provide engaging opportunities for Pennsylvanians and tourists to connect to the commonwealth's rich past.

Pennsylvania Governors Honor William Penn's Legacy at Pennsbury Manor

Reconstructed on the site of William Penn's country estate along the Delaware River near Morrisville, Bucks County, Pennsbury Manor interprets the life and career of Pennsylvania's first proprietor and founding governor. A popular tourist destination, it drew more than 17,500 visitors this past year. The site's living history programs, award-winning exhibits, and guided tours of buildings, gardens and stables of farm animals offer an informative glimpse into Penn's world and early life in Pennsylvania. On the 300th anniversary of Penn's death this year, the site commemorated the founder's legacy—his impact on government, civic affairs, town planning, and religious and ethnic diversity in Pennsylvania and ultimately throughout America. As the culmination of this year's anniversary, Pennsbury Manor brought together five living governors of Pennsylvania for a luncheon and panel discussion. Gov. Tom Wolf provided opening remarks, followed by his predecessors Tom Corbett, Ed Rendell, Mark Schweiker and Tom Ridge (comments by Dick Thornburgh were read in his absence due to illness), who reflected on their terms in office and the responsibilities of following in Penn's footsteps.

Arts on Fire Festival Offers Interactive Historical Experiences

Scranton Iron Furnaces, built in the 1840s, is a former iron foundry where many of the early immigrants to Scranton worked. Each June, the 4-acre site, managed by the Anthracite Heritage Museum, is the venue for the Arts on Fire Festival, a three-day celebration of arts, industry, heritage and community. Those who attend experience dramatic demonstrations using fire in such traditional practices as blacksmithing and glassblowing while sampling the region's industrial past through hands-on activities and workshops. Such one-of-a-kind events at Trails of History sites allow Pennsylvanians to step back in time and interact with their history.

Facility Rentals Bring Revenue and Advance Community Interaction

Facility rental for weddings, such as this one pictured at the Pennsylvania Lumber Museum in Galeton, Potter County, is one of the ways that Pennsylvania Trails of History sites and museums connect with their communities. Each site makes space available by special arrangement for those who wish to hold their functions in a historic setting. Families and friends also host reunions, picnics, parties and receptions on the grounds of many sites. Community groups, businesses and government agencies hold meetings, seminars, training sessions and fundraisers in museum and visitor center auditoriums and conference rooms. Other types of facility use include Scout camps, voter registration, and sporting events. This service not only earns revenue but promotes the cultural value of the historic site as the center of community interaction.

PHMC Inclusion Initiative Expands Access for Vision- and Hearing-Impaired Visitors

PHMC moved forward this year with its agencywide 21st Century Task Force, addressing issues of diversity, equity, inclusion and access in a more systemic way. The goal is to ensure that PHMC is serving all Pennsylvanians and all visitors to the state, welcoming them to explore its sites and museums and to provide their own stories. Emphasis is placed on connecting history to current issues and identifying and removing barriers between potential visitors and the sites. For instance, some Pennsylvania Trails of History sites began offering sign language communication programs for the hearing impaired. PHMC has also contracted with Aira, a service that gives site visitors with vision loss access to technology that uses their smartphones or special glasses to get free on-demand audio descriptions of individual objects, artworks and entire exhibits from remotely located professional agents.

The State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO)

supports efforts across Pennsylvania to incorporate history in the planning and development of vibrant, sustainable, forward-thinking communities. SHPO's preservation and heritage initiatives include supervision of planning and construction grants for the reuse of historic buildings, the management of state and federal tax credit programs for the rehabilitation of historic properties, the creation of a publicly searchable database of historic resources, and the administration of the Pennsylvania Historical Marker and National Register of Historic Places programs. Under the National Historic Preservation Act and the Pennsylvania History Code, SHPO partners with state agencies, developers, local governments and citizens to review more than 3,000 state and federal projects annually, ensuring that significant historic resources are incorporated within project planning.

Workshop to Preserve Mather Mill Serves as Prototype for Future Disaster Planning in PA

Mather Mill, a gristmill constructed around 1820 in Whitemarsh Township, Montgomery County, is a PHMC-owned historic site that sits in a 100-year floodplain and has been damaged by rising waters many times in its history. In October 2018 SHPO used the site as a model at-risk property for a demonstration workshop, part of its Disaster Planning for Historic Properties initiative, funded by a grant from the National Park Service made available to states impacted by Hurricane Sandy. SHPO reached out to architecture and planning firms throughout the region and invited them to attend the workshop to explore replicable resiliency strategies. The firms created proposals for the mill, offering a variety of design approaches while maintaining the mill's historic integrity. The workshop served as a successful prototype for ongoing efforts to protect at-risk historic properties in the state with consultation from enthusiastic community partners.

Section 106 Mitigation Leads to Preservation of Public Art and Digitization of Records

One of SHPO's many tasks is based on a provision in the National Historic Preservation Act, Section 106, which calls for federal agencies to consult with SHPOs about projects they sponsor and the effects that they might have on places of historic significance. The goal is to avoid, minimize or mitigate damage to these properties. This year SHPO participated in a consultation for a highway project connecting portions of downtown Pittsburgh that would require the removal of a pedestrian tunnel containing public art by Virgil Cantini, a prominent multimedia artist of the mid-20th century. SHPO discussions with local preservation interests resulted in the project being designed to allow for the careful removal, storage and reinstallation of Cantini's mosaic panels in a similar setting. Also in 2018-19, mitigation from the recent multimillion-dollar Shell petrochemical complex project, which impacted historic and archaeological resources in Beaver County, funded the digitization of millions of documents that make up SHPO's archives. With 93 percent of the project completed, resource files for 62 counties are now electronically available to the public through SHPO's searchable online database.

Federal and State Tax Credit Programs Enrich Communities

Constructed in 1788-94, Hill's Tavern in Scenery Hill, Washington County, was the oldest continuously operating inn on the National Road until it was damaged by fire in 2015. Today, it operates again as the Century Inn, with comfortable lodging and a restaurant featuring locally sourced fare, made possible through the federal Rehabilitation Investment Tax Credit (RITC) and the Pennsylvania Historic Preservation Tax Credits programs. The restoration of the inn, completed for reopening in February 2018, preserved the building's historic features or replicated and replaced lost elements to match the originals. Both RITC and Pennsylvania tax credits encourage private investment in rehabilitating income-producing historic properties, vital in bolstering economic development for communities in the state through tourism, job creation, and income for local businesses. In 2018-19, 74 projects were awarded RITCs, generating more than $657 million in new rehabilitation work, and 28 projects received state tax credits. The Pennsylvania program was reauthorized this year, with an increase in annual allocation and an extension to the year 2031.

#PreservationHappensHere Reaches PA Communities via Social Media

In May 2019 SHPO launched a social media campaign for its preservation plan #PreservationHappensHere to encourage Pennsylvanians to discover, share and celebrate historic places in their communities. #PreservationHappensHere is based on the idea that great preservation activities are happening every day across the commonwealth. Some of the goals of the campaign were to highlight the efforts that Pennsylvanians are making to care for historic places, communities and stories; to recognize smaller preservation successes that often fly under the radar; and to broaden the definition and understanding of historic preservation by seeing what others identify as "preservation happening" by using the hashtag #PreservationHappensHere. SHPO also selected winners of its Community Initiative Award. which recognizes organizations, municipalities, agencies, individuals and others whose work embodies the preservation theme, from stories that used the hashtag during the campaign. Posts for the campaign on various social media channels received more than 4.4 million impressions, presenting the preservation message to a broad audience.

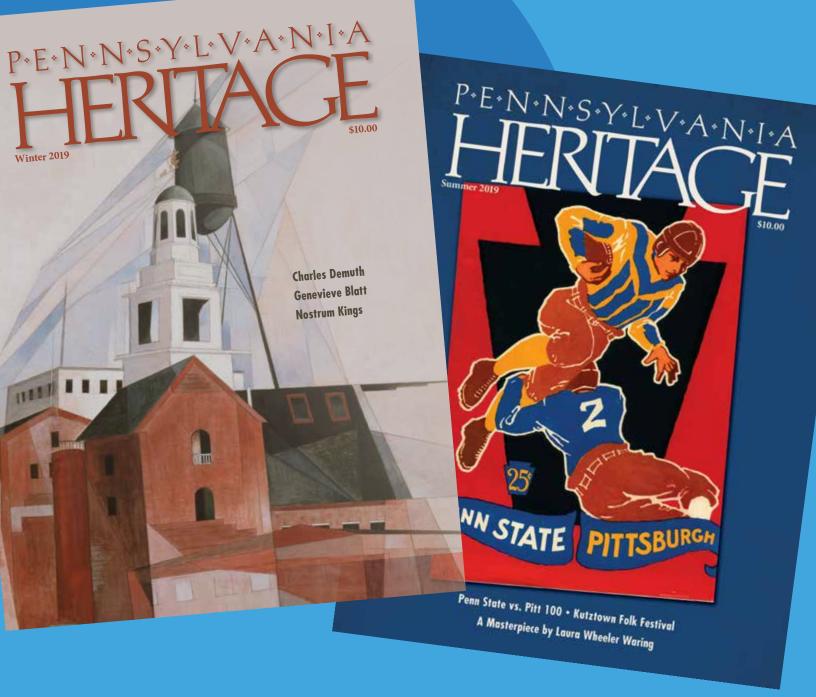

Historic Preservation Projects Reach Communities Across PA

As the official historic preservation agency for the commonwealth, SHPO engages with state and federal agencies, local governments, communities, organizations and individuals to identify, promote and protect Pennsylvania's architectural and archaeological resources. SHPO's main office is in Harrisburg and its regional offices are in Pittsburgh and Fort Washington, Montgomery County, to serve constituents throughout the commonwealth. This map represents the many ways and many places that SHPO's three offices make connections between people, place and community.

The Bureau of Management Services

supports the overall operation of PHMC. Its Division of Architecture and Preservation manages facility planning, architectural and engineering design, and construction projects for all PHMC facilities. Its Division of Marketing and Media supports the agency through media relations, graphic design, social media, and the publication of Pennsylvania Heritage magazine. Its Division of Fiscal and Office Support Services provides budget, purchasing, human resources, and other management services for PHMC.

is the nonprofit partner of the Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission. Governed by a volunteer board, PHF helps preserve the commonwealth's rich heritage through charitable funding, membership, grant management, and community engagement.

PHF Honors Donors at Reopening of Mammal Hall

The three-year process to restore The State Museum of Pennsylvania's Mammal Hall, supported by PHF through a successful fundraising drive, was completed this year. On September 25, 2018, the museum and PHF cohosted a reception to rededicate and reopen the hall. During the event, PHF presented to donors framed photographs of the dioramas they sponsored in appreciation of their contributions. The donors were David Fry and Meidee Goh, Janet and Lew Klein, Fred and Becky Powell, the S. Wilson and Grace M. Pollock Foundation, and the Joseph T. and Helen M. Simpson Foundation.

PHF Partners with The State Museum for Art of the State

PHF joined with The State Museum as partner in presenting Art of the State, the annual juried art exhibition that has been showcasing the work of Pennsylvania's artists at The State Museum since 1968. PHF serves as the fiscal partner of the exhibition. The State Museum organizes, designs and installs the show. The first exhibition of the collaboration opened before the end of the fiscal year in June 2019 with an awards ceremony and reception.

PHF Donates Civil War 150 Exhibit to National Civil War Museum

This year PHF donated the Pennsylvania Civil War Road Show exhibit to the National Civil War Museum in Harrisburg. The exhibit had been part of the Pennsylvania Civil War 150 initiative, the commonwealth's official program commemorating the 150th anniversary of the American Civil War. It is a multidimensional experience of Pennsylvania's role in the war, with audio, video, 3-D imagery and interactive displays, and was originally housed in a 53-foot tractor-trailer that traveled throughout Pennsylvania for two years beginning in 2011. After its tour, the exhibit was mounted temporarily in The State of Museum, where it was on display until March 2019.
