

Historic Agricultural Resources of Pennsylvania 1700-1960

Bibliography.

Compiled by Sally McMurry, Pennsylvania State University. Updated May 23, 2012.

This selected bibliography has been compiled with the goal of furnishing guidelines for research on the history of Pennsylvania agriculture. It was compiled using online databases (America: History and Life; Vernacular Architecture Forum Bibliography) and other resources. The materials listed here mainly pertain to subjects relevant to the agricultural history of the state as a whole. More specific references appear in each individual narrative for particular regions.

BASIC PRIMARY SOURCES

Below are listed some basic categories of published and unpublished primary sources that can be helpful in doing research on historic agricultural patterns and practices.

U. S. Census Manuscript schedules for agriculture. These are available on microfilm for the years 1850, 1860, 1870, 1880, and 1900, at the Pennsylvania State Archives, the National Archives, and Penn State University Libraries. Some may exist for 1910. Pennsylvania conducted a census of agriculture in 1924 and 1927 and these are also available from the State Archives. These manuscripts are valuable because they list production for each individual farm. The Pennsylvania manuscripts for 1850, 1880, and 1927 are now available in digital form through the Pennsylvania Agricultural History Project website.

Published U. S. Census summaries. To some extent, online resources are providing this data, but these are often incomplete. The 1910 US Census, for instance, had an entire supplement on Pennsylvania agriculture. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has digitized many of the published reports, and they are accessible through the USDA website.

PSU Agricultural extension archival records, PSU Special Collections, are organized by county and begin as early as 1917. They have reports from the county agents on activities in each county. Many county agents also included photographs, surveys, and other materials. Some of these materials are digitized and are available through the Special Collections section in the Penn State University Libraries website. The digitizing project is ongoing, so more counties are being added into 2012 and beyond.

County tax assessment records (usually found at the county courthouse or historical society) can help determine landownership and tenancy patterns.

Maps and atlases such as Henry Walling, New Topographical Atlas, 1872; Mitchell's New Traveller's Guide, 1851; Johnson's Pennsylvania and New Jersey Almanac, 1808, Joseph Scott, Joseph, A Geographical Description of Pennsylvania, 1806; etc. indicate stage routes, internal improvements, post routes, townships, etc. Penn State University Libraries' Maps department has a large collection of Pennsylvania historical maps. Many can also be found online through the Penn State Library site and others; the Library of Congress's American Memory site is a good place to begin looking for historic maps.

Gazetteers sometimes describe local agricultural practices. See for example Thomas Gordon, A Gazetteer of the State of Pennsylvania, 1832.

Travel descriptions are often valuable. There is no centralized bibliography, however.

Pennsylvania State Archives. There are many collections with relevance to agriculture. The Agricultural History Project staff compiled a document in 2006 titled "Agricultural Resources at the Pennsylvania State Archives." It is appended at the end of this document. Besides the obvious Department of Agriculture materials (Record Group 1), photos and other information may be found in the Department of Commerce papers (Record Group 31), which contains 1930s aerial photos and materials such as photographs from the Vacation and Travel Bureau. Record Group 6 (Department of Forests and Waters) and Record Group 12 (Department of Highways) also have photographic collections which often contain agricultural scenes. Record Group 28 (Treasury Department) contains county-level data in the Board of Revenue

Commissioners' Answers to Interrogatories. Manuscript Group 213, Postcard Collection, has early twentieth century postcards organized by county.

U. S. Direct Tax for 1798: A list which contains dimensions and materials of buildings. County coverage for Pennsylvania is quite good. Microfilm copies are available at local libraries and at the Penn State Library. Online availability is spotty.

PUBLISHED AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION BULLETINS, STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY TRANSACTIONS, STATE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE PUBLICATIONS, AND USDA PUBLICATIONS.

("State" refers to Pennsylvania unless otherwise indicated.) These published documents contain valuable information on farming practices and overall patterns of production over time. A selection is listed below. All are available at the Penn State Library; most have not been made available online as of 2012.

Agriculture of Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania State Board of Agriculture. Containing reports of the State Board of Agriculture, the State Agricultural Society, the State Dairymen's Association, the State Fruit Growers' Association, and the State College, Annual, 1878-1894.

Report of the transactions of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society. Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society. 1855-1877. Followed by Quarterly Report of the State Board of Agriculture, 1877-1894. Followed by the Annual Report of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, 1896-1916. These reports often contain important statistical data in years other than census years; and also articles on various topics. Some of the more notable ones are listed individually.

WEBSITES

Note: rather than include URLs, which often change, these descriptions contain enough information so that the sites can be found using a Web browser.

This selected list covers sites whose scope extends statewide or further. County and local sites are discussed in individual narratives.

American Periodical Series. Hundreds of mostly 19th-century journals. May require an access account.

Core Historical Literature of Agriculture. Cornell University project.

Digital resources for historical Pennsylvania agriculture. Compiled by staff at the Penn State University Libraries, Life Sciences Library. The offerings are incomplete, but one valuable resource is an extensive Bibliography of Pennsylvania's Agriculture and Rural Life, 1820-1945. Many entries have hot-links to online versions.

Farm, Field, and Fireside. University of Illinois collection of farm journals. While it focuses on the Midwest, this site also offers nationally-distributed journals such as the Farmer's Wife.

Historic American Buildings Survey, Historic American Engineering Record. Searchable database of buildings that were included in these projects.

Historical Census Data Browser. Historical data, can be manipulated and searched down to the county level, and mapped also. Hosted at the University of Virginia's Fisher Library.

Home Economics Archive: Research, Tradition, History (HEARTH): Primary sources relating to home economics, from Cornell University's Mann Library.

Library of Congress "American Memory" website. Maps, photos, Farm Security Administration photos, and more.

National Agricultural Statistics Service – contains state by state current data.

National Register of Historic Places. Main site for National Register information and some documentation.

PAGenWeb project. Digital genealogy. Genealogists have made available a wealth of primary materials online, and more is added daily. Each state has its own site.

Pennsylvania Cultural Resources GIS (PA CRGIS) site. Users may obtain lists of properties covered in the Pennsylvania Historic Resource Survey and further documentation for all National Register-listed properties in the state. Searchable.

Pennsylvania State Data Center – broad demographic and economic data.
