The Federal population census is an important tool for understanding the history of a community and how that community has changed over time. The census provides data that can help us to better understand Pennsylvania's diverse racial and ethnic populations (referred to as underrepresented communities for purposes of this Baseline Survey effort), where these populations settled historically, and how they left their mark on the Commonwealth's landscape.

Pennsylvania has a history of being ethnically diverse in both the urban areas of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and in the commonwealth's smaller cities and rural areas. Native Americans have called Pennsylvania's lands home for centuries. Dutch, Swedish, and Finnish settlers moved to Pennsylvania in the late 17th century, and were quickly followed by English, German and other Europeans by the turn of the 18th century. Both enslaved and free Africans and African Americans lived in Pennsylvania as early as 1690 and the commonwealth's Black communities grew exponentially with the First Great Migration in the early 20th century. By the mid-20th century, people from almost all racial and ethnic groups had settled in Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania's historical racial and ethnic diversity and the surviving older and historic places that embody that diversity is not well understood or well documented. By understanding what populations were present, when, and where they lived, the Pennsylvania State Historic Preservation Office (PA SHPO) can identify and document the older and historic places associated with these underrepresented communities through targeted survey work.

Once this information is collected and added to PA-SHARE, Pennsylvania's online database of older and historic places, this important information will be available to professionals and the public alike, providing everyone with data to support the need to tell broader and more inclusive stories.

It is important to note that census data is only one part of the extensive research that is necessary to understand Pennsylvania's varied and changing communities over the last four hundred years. The information collected, methods for collecting it, and categories and definitions changed from census taker to census taker and from year to year.

Crawford County is one of the fifty-two counties in Pennsylvania where PA SHPO and its contractors will be working over the next two years to collect information about historic places that are underrepresented in Pennsylvania's statewide historic inventory.

It is important that PA SHPO collects information about the older and historic places that Pennsylvanian's value in their communities. PA SHPO welcomes public recommendations for places that should be documented in this survey. If you would like to provide your feedback, please fill out this short survey form.

Crawford County

Crawford County was founded on March 12, 1800. It contains 51 municipalities and as of the 2020 federal census, the total population was 83,938. The population of Crawford County was first recorded in the 1800 US Census. A total of 2,346 inhabitants were recorded, 5 of whom were enslaved Black people and 5 of whom were “Other Free Persons” of non-White race. Total population growth in Crawford County continued to gradually increase through 1880. From 1880 to 1920, the total population remained on a slow decline before entering a period of increase into the mid-20th century. The total population peaked in 1970 with 81,342 residents.

The Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC) population of Crawford County have historically represented less than 1% of the total population from 1800 to 1970. The total population of BIPOC in Crawford County has generally increased and decreased in proportion with the total population. The BIPOC population in Crawford County from 1790 to 1970 were predominantly Black. The Black population was at its largest in 1970, with 1,045 individuals.

Asians were documented as living in Crawford County beginning in 1880 and were predominantly of Chinese descent until 1950. In 1950, the number of Japanese residents (4) surpassed the number of Chinese residents (2). Native Americans were recorded in Crawford County in the 1870, 1890, 1910-1930, and 1950-1970 censuses. No people of Hispanic descent were recorded in Crawford County from 1800 to 1970. The “Other” category has been used to describe different groups through time. In 1790 and 1800, “Other” specifically noted BIPOC people, predominantly Black Americans, who were not enslaved. In later decades, it is inconclusive whether “Other” includes only mixed-race people or people of Black, Native American, Asian, or Hispanic descent during any given decade.

Baseline Survey Census Research Crawford County

This graph shows the relationship between BIPOC populations (right side axis) and total population (left side axis) in Crawford County from 1790 to 1970. Significant events that had a bearing on the population are included below the graph to show Crawford County's total populations at these important points in time.

The 1810 federal census is not digitized and therefore there is no population data. The 1830 census only provided the total population, total number of free persons, and total number of enslaved persons. There were no enslaved people in Crawford County in 1830 and no distinction of race among free people, therefore the BIPOC total for 1830 based on what is known is 0 people.
